

Ingrid Klingmann Joins CRF Health as Consulting Clinical Advisor

Lansdale, PA – April 29, 2010: Ingrid Klingmann, MD, PhD, FFPM, FBCPM, recently joined CRF Health as consulting Clinical Advisor. With over 20 years of experience in the clinical trial sector, Dr. Klingmann brings a wealth of global clinical experience to CRF Health, the electronic patient reported outcomes (ePRO) solutions company. In her position as Clinical Advisor, Dr. Klingmann will use her clinical and therapeutic insights to provide training to both internal staff and investigator sites. She will also represent CRF Health in special interest groups and present on ePRO trends at industry forums.

Dr. Klingmann's experience includes work in pharmaceutical companies and global CROs, while she enhanced the multi-stakeholder opinion- building on an improved regulatory environment for clinical trials in pan-European not-for-profit organizations. She has also worked in university settings and as a consultant in drug development planning and site management support. Her experience spans clinical research operations in Belgium, France, Switzerland, and the U.K. as well as in her native Germany.

She is lecturer and chair of the Clinical Documentation module in a Regulatory Affairs Master course at the University of Bonn (Germany) and of a Clinical Trials Practice Certificate course at the University of Basel (Switzerland). She has long been an active member of the Drug Information Association and was a founding member of the European Forum for Good Clinical Practice (EFGCP). Dr. Klingmann received her medical degree at the University of Heidelberg, Germany.

Rachael King, CEO, CRF Health, said: "We are delighted to welcome Dr. Ingrid Klingmann to our global ePRO team. Her extensive clinical experience and therapeutic expertise are valuable assets. Her ability to communicate the value of ePRO, particularly now that the FDA has published new PRO guidelines, will sufficiently guide CRF Health as we continue our record growth."
